Jeff routinely represents public utilities companies, local taxing bodies and governmental authorities with regards to bankruptcy, creditors' rights, and collection matters. He serves as national bankruptcy counsel for a public utility company.

As co-chair of the firm's Estate Planning & Administration Group, Jeff counsels clients on estate planning, business succession and estate administrative issues. Jeff has experience with drafting basic and sophisticated estate planning documents for taxable and non-taxable estates that are designed to meet his clients' goals and objectives.

Jeff also represents corporations, limited liability companies, partnerships, and nonprofit organizations on a broad range of corporate, real estate, regulatory and transactional matters. In addition to acting as corporate counsel for privately held businesses, he serves as outside general counsel for the Gateway Rehabilitation Center, a regional healthcare provider of addiction treatment services to those affected with substance use disorders.
